Introduction

The Miegunyah International Scholarship is available to current PhD students undertaking research in the areas of Humanities and Social Sciences who intend to present their work at an international conference or a key university outside Australia.

Humanities and Social Sciences include study of all languages and literatures, the arts, anthropology, archaeology, economics, history, human geography, linguistics, management science, media studies, philosophy, political science, and psychology.

All University-related travel is governed student travel policies. Additional advice and approval for international travel to high risk countries for study or academic activity apply. An offer for the Miegunyah International Scholarship is not an approval to travel to high risk countries. See: Travel and off campus work \(unimelb.edu.au\)
